

VOCORI attempts to implement a mixture of programs such as:

- Basic education.
- Life skills' training.
- Health.
- Social welfare
- Carrying out research and empirical studies.

We group children in various groups in relation to their circumstances and their immediate needs:

- Orphans.
- Vulnerable children living in poor conditions with their parents starting with the under 5s.
- Street children and conflict children.

The empirical studies investigate the problems relating to each group respectively and try to find solutions. Solutions are implemented in phases, phase 1 is of those that require immediate care being child-headed households and in phase II will bring in other groups of vulnerable children and their parents or caretakers. Our target is to break the cycle of child poverty that leads to intergenerational poverty traps.